Asks U.N. To Open Road To Hebrew University And Hadassah Hospital In Israel

An appeal to the United Nations and to Trans-Jordan to open the road to Mount Scopus in Jerusalem and to permit the Jewish people to worship at the Wailing Wall in the old section of Jerusalem was made by Shlomo Z. Shragai, Israel's first elected Mayor of the new city of Jerusalem.

Hebrew University and Hadassah Hospital are on Mount Scopus, which is under supervision of the United Nations. Since the end of hostilities in the Holy Land, Jerusalem has been suspended in these institutions but have been continued in temporary shelters in the new section of Jerusalem. The old section of the city, including the road leading to Mount Scopus, is under the jurisdiction of Trans-Jordan.

Mayor Shragai was the guest of honor at a dinner at the Commodore Hotel in New York, given by Hapoel Hamizrachi of America, religious-labor group, which marked its thirtieth anniversary. The Jerusalem executive is a founder and a leader of the Hapoel Hamizrachi in Israel.

Other speakers included Mayor Joseph P. Kamp, of New York; Arthur Lourie, Consul General of Israel; Charles Bick, president of Hapoel Hamizrachi; Dr. Chaim Grossberg, a member of the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine; and Herman Kellman, president of the New York Council of Hapoel Hamizrachi. Benjamin Glaser, chairman of the board of The Jewish Morning Journal, presided.

Speaking before 1,200 persons, Mayor Shragai emphasized that the Jewish people in Israel are not asking for special treatment, but that they should be given to the people of Israel.

Mayor Shragai noted that 750,000 Jews had entered Israel in the last three and one-half years and appealed for widespread support of the United Jewish Appeal to aid his country to rehabilitate and resettle the immigrants.

Calling attention to the 3,000th anniversary of the founding of the kingdom of David, which will be celebrated in Jerusalem next year,

Mayor Shragai extended an invitation to Jews and non-Jews "to participate in the great celebration which marks the joy and happiness of the Jewish people."

He urged the "non-Jewish world to participate in our celebration because it is our firm conviction that all people who hope and believe in a better tomorrow can draw new strength from the renaissance of our great city."

Jurist Was Figure In Truman Clash

Judge Benjamin P. Epstein, whose recommendation for a Federal judgeship last year by Senator Paul Douglas, Democrat of Illinois, resulted in a dispute between the Senator and President Truman, died in Chicago in Michael Reese Hospital of a heart ailment. His age was 63.

Judge Epstein had been one of three men recommended by Sen. Douglas to President Truman to fill three vacancies on the United States District Court bench for the Northern Illinois District. The other two were William H. King Jr. and Joseph Samuel Perry. President Truman accepted the recommendation for Mr. Perry, but rejected Sen. Douglas's other two choices, substituting two of his own nominations, Circuit Court Judge Cornelius J. Harrington and Municipal Court Judge Joseph J. Drucker.

Sen. Douglas regarded the President's refusal to follow his suggestion as a violation of his constitutional prerogatives, termed the "executive veto" and called upon the Senate to reject the President's nominees. The Senator argued that it was traditional that the President consult the Senators from the state in which the appointments to the bench are to be made and that the President's action in ignoring his recommendations was "contrary to the public interest."

On October 8, 1951, the Senate unanimously supported Sen. Douglas's views and denied confirmation to the President's nominees. (Continued on Page Sixteen)

Israel Plans To Admit More U.S. Books

The United States and Israeli Governments are negotiating an agreement designed to put the United States on an equal footing with the Soviet Union in importing books, periodicals and newspapers into Israel. Friends of the United States hope the agreement will end the present situation in which United States books are almost unobtainable while shelves in many book stores are loaded with Soviet books. They hope also it will enable distributors of United States magazines and newspapers to begin to meet the enormous demand.

The agreement as now contemplated would permit distributors of United States books, magazines and newspapers to turn over local currency derived from sales to the United States Embassy for the expenses of United States Government representatives in Israel. The United States Government, relieved of part of its dollar expenses in Israel, would compensate United States book, magazine and newspaper publishers in dollars in the United States. The only loss would be the Israeli Government, which would receive less dollar payments for the expenses of the United States embassy and consulates in Israel.

The agreement would be in accordance with United States information media and would guarantee a program that in the past has operated successfully in Germany, Austria, France, Norway and the Netherlands. As understood in Israel, the program, originally established in connection with the Economic Cooperation Administration, is still in effect.

The Israeli Government for several years has been in the process of buying Russian books and periodicals, says the New York Times. There was no great objection because Israel would have had little use for them.

In addition, however, the British Council—a cultural organization loosely attached to the British legation—has also been allowed to finance the British legation from the sale of books. Although its supplies are limited, the Council has lately become the main source of English-language books. The Chief of the United States Information and Education Liaison (Continued on Page Sixteen)

Israeli Teachers Go To Latin America To Spread Hebrew

The department for culture and education of the World Zionist Organization, has sent 16 Israeli grade school and kindergarten instructors to Jewish communities in Brazil, Uruguay, and Chile and 64 Latin American teachers have just returned to their communities after completing a winter seminar on Hebrew education in Israel. The department has granted fellowships to 10 teachers from Argentina and Mexico, enabling them to remain in Israel for a year to perfect their knowledge of Hebrew and pedagogy.

The relatively small Jewish community of Brazil, has received 10 teachers from Israel. Three other Israeli teachers have gone to Chile, two to Uruguay, and several principals and pedagogic instructors will be sent shortly to Mexico. Israel will also be sending a headmaster to the Tachkemoni, in Antwerp, Belgium, one of the oldest Hebrew day schools in Europe. The departure of the Israeli educators to posts abroad was facilitated by the Government Department of Education which released them at a sacrifice to Israel's own short-handed school system.

The instructors for Brazil were selected by a committee of four Brazilian Jewish community leaders and educators, assisted by the department for culture and education, who visited Israel last summer. Prior to their departure the teachers attended a brief seminar to prepare them for their tasks in Brazil. The seminar included lectures on Latin America, with emphasis on Brazil, the history, structure, and social and educational life of the Brazilian Jewish community. The department of education of the Keren Kayemet also arranged a special course for the teachers. They were accompanied to Brazil by Nathan Levin, who was appointed at the request of Brazilian Jewry to supervise Jewish education in that country.

The Latin American group which attended the teachers' seminar in Israel during January and February consisted of 25 teachers and principals from Argentina, one from Chile and four each from Brazil and Mexico. Among the Argentine group were six instructors from the Buenos Aires Hebrew Teachers College. The curriculum of the seminar included lectures on Jewish and Zionist subjects, the history and geography of Israel and its economic problems. The group toured the country and visited a number of educational institutions.

Four internationally prominent men who will be honorary sponsors of the Jewish Agency's Israel Summer Institute, vacation-time workshop tour of Israel, designed for American students and educators, are: His Excellency Abba Eban, Israeli Ambassador to the United States; Professor Albert Einstein, of Princeton University; The Honorable I. C. Read, Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada; and Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

The summer institute was established three years ago to afford young Americans an opportunity to meet its people, its leaders and scholars, to study at its university and to work in its famous agricultural settlements. This year's institute, of seven week duration, is divided between formal study, work on the soil and guided tours. The first three weeks will consist largely of lectures by faculty members of the Hebrew University, officials of the Jewish Agency and Israeli Government leaders, covering many phases of Jewish culture and major aspects of life in Israel. During the remaining four weeks, members of the institute will work and live in an Israeli agricultural settlement and tour the country, seeing cities, towns, religious shrines, ancient sites, modern industrial plants and reclamation projects.

Other sponsors of the Institute include Benjamin G. Strowdy, president of the Zionist Organization of America; Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress; Edward Newman, president of the American Fund for Israel Institutions; Judith Pich, of the American Association for Jewish Education; and Mrs. Samuel J. Rosenzweig, president of Hadassah.

Participants in the tour will be selected by the Jewish Agency. The tour will be a source of inspiration to the entire Jewish community. We shall hope and pray that the tour will be a most successful one.

Israel To Ask Skilled U.S. Youth To Go There For Year Or More In Industry

A campaign to persuade young American Jews with industrial skills to devote a year or so of their lives to Israel will be launched by Jewish organizations in the United States in the near future, Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress, said in Jerusalem. Dr. Goldstein reported that the Jewish Agency executive committee had decided to allocate $500,000 to Israel for housing such young Americans on the understanding that a similar sum would be raised by United States Zionist groups.

The idea of coming to Israel to work in agricultural settlements at least for a few years is an old one among American Jews," Dr. Goldstein observed. "But coming to work in industry is something new. After all, important as agriculture is for Israel, 75 per cent of the immigrants must be absorbed in industry."

During its current meeting the Jewish Agency executive has decided to propose that the Israeli Government give a four-man committee authority to coordinate the activities of the Israeli bond drive and the United Jewish Appeal as to put an end to the rivalry between the two organizations, says the New York Times.

The coordinating committee would determine the timing of the drives by each organization in American communities so that they would not overlap.

While Israeli officials hope that the country will be self-sufficient within six or seven years, they feel that in the meantime gifts under the United Jewish Appeal remain as important to the country as investments.

The Jewish Agency Executive also dealt with the special status it has been seeking for several years. It would like the Israeli Parliament to give it special status for its work in Israel in connection with immigration, absorption and colonization so that if other organizations wished to work in this field they would have to do so in cooperation with the Jewish Agency.

Another question dealt with was that of including non-Zionist organizations in the Jewish Agency. These might include the American Jewish Committee, B'nai B'rith, the Jewish Labor Committee and Agudath Israel in the United States as well as the board of deputies of British Jewry and the CRIS (Council Representative Israelites) organization in France.

The feeling among Agency officials is that many non-Zionist organizations have developed an interest in Israel that would make a combination of these groups with existing Zionist organizations successful even though the combination did not work out when undertaken for the first time, according to the Times.

The decision of the Jewish Agency to include non-Zionist organizations will be brought before the Executive Council of the World Jewish Congress at its meeting in Jerusalem May 7.

W.J.C. Deplores Loss Of Leader In Mexico

Victor Mitrani, veteran leader of the Sephardic community of Mexico and a member of the executive of the World Jewish Congress, died in Mexico City suddenly. Mr. Mitrani, who led successful efforts to organize the Sephardic community and was its secretary-general for 16 years, also took a prominent part in organizing World Jewish Congress committees in Latin America. He served, too, as president of the Association for the Hebrew University of Jerusalem; vice-president of the Jewish Central Committee of Mexico; and honorary secretary of the Anti-Defamation Committee in Mexico.

Born in Turkey, Mr. Mitrani was decorated three times for bravery while serving as a lieutenant in the Turkish Army in World War I. After the war, he migrated to Cuba and immediately engaged in Jewish philanthropic and cultural activities. There he founded the Theodore Herzl School which provided education for hundreds of Jewish children. In Mexico, where he settled in 1926, he helped found the Sephardic Zionist Organization and the Jewish Central Committee. During the Second World War, he was head of the JOC's Committee on Refugees. In the course of four missions to other Latin American countries, he spread the message of the World Jewish Congress.

In the climactic years of the struggle to establish a Jewish state in Palestine, Mr. Mitrani was Mexican officer of the World Committee pro Palestine and succeeded in collecting the aid of prominent Mexican leaders. He participated in the Third Zionist Congress in Basel and in sessions of the World Jewish Congress in Montreal and Baltimore. Dr. Maurice L. Perlmutter, Director of the WJC International Affairs Department, noted in a

One of his exhibitions was opened by the American art critic, Thomas Craven, who wrote: "As an artist, Moshe Matus is one of the most original and talented men to come to America in many years. He has developed an extremely personal painting language which is bold and free but never out of control. In fact, his style, while vigorously in bounds, is admirably suited to the rendering of our industrial age, which he is now painting with an inspired vigor and rare dramatic force." Once Jews Were Part Of German Life

There are about 20,000 Jews in Berlin and West Germany. Once there were 600,000 Jews in Germany. Before the Nazi era, Jews were an integral part of German life, workers, professionals, merchants and to some extent Government and cultural leaders. Today they are mostly aged and needy survivors of Nazism who feel no relationship to the community around them.

With most Jews having been wiped out during the years of Nazism or emigrated in the post-war years, the few clusters of Jews in some of the larger cities have remained only because they have been financially or physically unable to leave. Only a few Jews are in Germany because they want to be, says the New York Times.

In the words of an official of one of the private aid agencies, the present Jewish population of Germany consists in the main of persons who are "too sick, too weary or too afraid" to emigrate. For this reason, they are not expected to be able ever to become self-supporting. They will constitute a drain on the German economy through pensions and restitutions as well as on private relief agencies abroad, chiefly the United States.

One relief agency, the American Joint Distribution Committee, continues to provide support to Jewish communities in West Germany and is still giving cash grants and food packages to 4,000 persons monthly.

The Jews in Germany consist of persons who can be classed as follows:

1. German Jews who escaped their Nazi persecutors or who luckily survived the concentration camps, as well as a very small number who emigrated in the early years and have now returned. Few have sufficient funds to maintain themselves. They must be cared for in welfare homes or other institutions.

2. Jews from Eastern countries who were displaced during the war or fled communism after the war. A small number established businesses and, having found a home after many years of wandering through European ghettos and German concentration camps, they are reluctant to attempt further adjustment in another country. Among them also are Jews who are ineligible for admission as immigrants to the United States, Canada and other countries and are unwilling to go to Israel because of reports of poor living conditions.

3. A small group that actually came back to Germany from Israel, Western Europe and the United States. They failed to adjust themselves abroad. Some said they encountered anti-Semitism abroad. Some heard reports of economic revival in Germany that often contrasted sharply with their own living conditions abroad. In this group many Jews were encouraged by inducements of restitutions and indemnification for their sufferings during the Nazi period. Most of these persons claim they will emigrate again.

Children under the age of 18 constitute less than 10 per cent of the Jewish populace. Sixty per cent of the Jews in West Germany are more than 46 years of age and nearly one out of four is more than 65.

The majority of the German Jews live off pensions or indemnifications due them for imprisonment, loss of business or physical impairment attributable to Nazi persecutions. These indemnification funds are counted against their total claims, which many either have exhausted or are near to exhausting. The result is that when final restitutions and indemnifications are made, most of these Jews will continue to receive doles.

A substantial number of Jews are not entitled to indemnification. They receive welfare grants from the West German Government. About 20 per cent of the Jews in Germany head small businesses. A similar proportion has found work again with companies for whom they formerly worked. A small group of former civil servants have regained their old positions.

There are very few outstanding leaders of West German life today who are Jews.

The Jews in Germany have re-organized the pre-Nazi pattern of official cultural communities, recognized under German law with semi-civic authority to tax their own members, enjoy representation on Government committees much like a trade union or an employers' association, and to enjoy other official civic rights not customary in for a greater measure of Passover pleasure

the United States.

The Kulturgemeinden or cultural communities are united in state-wide federations, and these in turn are organized in a Central Council of Jews in Germany, which was formed January, 1950. The Central Council has been attempting to reconstitute an orderly way of life for the communities of Jews remaining in Germany, according to the New York Times.

New York's famed International Flower Show sees Israel represented, continuing until March 23. The exhibit, jointly sponsored by the Israel Ministry of Agriculture and the Jewish National Fund, demonstrates how barren wastelands have been reclaimed. A "before-and-after" technique is being used, showing in one portion the barren lands before cultivation, and in the other, the accomplishments that have been achieved within the few years. There are some flowers, native of the Holy Land, such as the Rose of Sharon and the Mandrake, also such flowers as gla-doli, carnations, and cyclamens that have been brought to Israel and reproduced there. The idea of the exhibit was conceived by Mrs. Carl Tausig, of New York, a horticulture enthusiast, when she visited Jerusalem in 1938.

Direct Israeli-German Negotiations? Yes

BY DR. MANU GOLDMANN, CHAIRMAN OF THE JEWISH AGENCY FOR PALESTINE AND PRESIDING OFFICER OF THE CONFERENCE ON JEWISH MATERIAL CLAIMS AGAINST GERMANY

Public discussion on the issue of Jewish claims against Germany has become increasingly violent and confused because there has been a tendency in the public mind to mix up two quite different aspects of the over-all problem of German-Jewish relations.

On the one hand, there exists the problem of the relationship between the Jewish and German peoples, as well as (on a more concrete and formal level) the relationship between the State of Israel and the German State. This great historical and moral problem, as I have often pointed out, is not yet ripe for solution. Neither the counting of noses in committee, nor the verdict of a congress or parliament, no matter how representative, can resolve it. Its resolution lies in the lap of time.

This much is clear: before the Jewish people will be able to set aside their bitter memories of the Nazi regime and be prepared to normalize relations with the German people, before, that is to say, Israel can establish diplomatic relations with Germany and Jews begin to cooperate with Germans as they now do with other peoples, the passage of time will have to bring about profound changes in the German national character. The Germans will have to disown, once and for all, the neo-Nazi and aggressive elements which dominate many sectors of their life today. They will have to give evidence of a faith and loyalty to democratic ideals and a respect for human rights which has so far been missing among so many of them. They will have to crush, finally and irrevocably, their anti-Semitism. They will have to show, not alone by word but by deed, that they have grown to consider that Nazi Germany was their enemy, as well as the enemy of the rest of mankind.

I cannot emphasize too strongly that it was never the intention of either the Government of Israel or of the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany, the two official bodies which are dealing with the problem of German reparations, to undertake the responsibility of "normalizing" German-Jewish relations. This is a responsibility which rests exclusively upon the Jewish people as a whole and it cannot be shouldered, as I have said, by any group of leaders, no matter how representative they may be.

But there is quite another aspect to the problem which can and must be kept separate from the over-all problem of German-Jewish relations. This has to do with the simple fact that the Nazi regime stole from Jews all over Europe tremendous amounts of property, both public and private. Who can deny the moral right of the Jews to make every effort to get back as much of this property as is humanly possible? This unquestionable moral right accrues to individual survivors of the Nazi terror who now seek to reclaim their private property. It accrues to the living heirs of those who lost both their property and their lives. And it accrues to the Jewish public bodies which are acting in behalf of the millions who were killed and who left no heirs.

To deny this right, to take the position that we don't want our own property returned to us by the Germans, would be, in my opinion, absolutely immoral. To take such a position would mean that we are ready to pay a premium to murderers and robbers.

The right of the Jews to reclaim what had been taken from them was recognized long ago not only by world opinion but in practical fashion by the Western Powers. The first of the powers to act in this regard was the U.S. Government which, at the request of Jewish organizations, instituted in the American zone of Germany a series of regulations providing for the restitution of stolen property to the original owners or their heirs, or, in cases where no heirs survived, to the Jewish Restitution Successor Organization. The American action was taken five years ago. Similar steps have been taken more recently in the British and French zones.

The Jewish Restitution Successor Organization, commonly known as JRSO, includes in its membership most of the leading Jewish organizations of the world. Principal administrative responsibility for it rests upon the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Joint Distribution Committee, which, by agreement, are the beneficiaries of the proceeds.

It is to be noted that the JRSO has been operating in this field for a number of years. It has maintained offices in Germany. Its representatives have, of necessity, been dealing directly with German officials. It has succeeded in reclaiming, to date, property valued at millions of dollars. And it has done all of this without protest from anyone. On the contrary, its work has been supported wholeheartedly by some of the very people who are today vociferously opposing the only practical means open to us of reclaiming our own property in really significant amounts.

We come now to a new aspect of the problem of German material reparations. The JRSO and similar bodies have been dealing not with a national German Government, but with the individual governments of the German states, or Laender. Yet the great bulk of Jewish property was taken away not by individual Germans, or by individual German Laender, but by the German Reich or federal government. That which was taken by the Reich authorities cannot, naturally, be restored by the state authorities.

Ever since the post-war German central governments were established, one for Western Germany and one for Eastern Germany, they have been pressed to adopt policies similar to those which the Occupying Powers imposed upon the states within their respective zones. The first affirmative reaction was that of Chancellor Adenauer last September, when he announced, with the approval of the Bonn Parliament, his government's willingness to negotiate on the matter. It was a statement which should have been made years ago; but the fact that it came late does not deprive it of its great significance. In this statement the Bonn Government, which has declared itself the legal successor of the Nazi Reich, publicly announced the German people's moral responsibility for making material amends to the Jewish people.

Now, naturally, it would have been very simple and very pleasing if it were possible for us to deal with the Bonn Republic as the JRSO has been dealing with the German Laender, i.e., through the Occupying Powers. On two occasions the Government of Israel requested Western support in obtaining reparations from the central German authorities. On both occasions the response of the Western Powers was positive with regard to the moral validity of the Jewish claim and completely negative with regard to their undertaking the role of collectors for Israel.

It is therefore abundantly clear that the only way we can press for return of the great bulk of the property which was stolen from Jewry is through our own efforts, i.e., through the readiness of the Government of Israel and of the Jewish groups of the Diaspora, organized in the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany, to negotiate with the Germans.

Indeed, direct negotiations would ultimately be inevitable even were the Western Powers ready to assume the role of "go-between." The fact that the U. S., France and Britain, each in its own zone, paved the way for the operations of the JRSO, did not obviate the necessity of Jew talking to German. The restitution law imposed by the United States, for instance, did not eliminate the necessity for JRSO representatives to deal directly with German individuals, German courts and the German state officials.

No protest was ever entered against these negotiations and settlements. On what ground, then, is it permissible to negotiate with the Finance Minister of Hesse, or of Bavaria, but not permissible to negotiate with the Chancellor of the Bonn Republic? But let us assume, for the sake of argument, that it would be possible to persuade the Western Powers to negotiate a settlement in behalf of the Jews with the Bonn Republic. Any such agreement would still have to be implemented through direct contact between Israel and German authorities.

Payment will have to be made primarily in goods. These goods will have to be selected in negotiation with German industry and government officials. Individual prices must be agreed upon; shipments must be arranged; and the endless details involved in huge transfers of merchandise over protracted periods of time must be attended to. Does anyone expect that the U.S. or the British governments will be willing to set up the vast machinery necessary for this operation? The idea is fantastic; it is Quixotic in the extreme.

Two years ago, in Israel, I declared that in this business there will be no Shabbos Goyim. Either we will put the thing through ourselves, or it won't be done. Put in another way: our choice is to negotiate with the Germans, or to leave the whole matter in German hands. What moral principle dictates that the criminal shall be left in possession of his loot? How are Jewish dignity and self-respect served by depriving Israel, and Hitler's surviving Jewish victims, of what is rightfully theirs?

MARRIAGES

WELIKOVITCH-WISEBERG

The marriage of Miss Goldie Wiseberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wiseberg, 8802 Birnam Avenue, to Ralph Welikovich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Welikovich, 8882 Hutchison Street, took place in a candlelight ceremony, at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, on November 4, at half-past six o'clock. Dr. Solomon Frank, Rabbi, officiated, assisted by Reverend A. Kastner. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was gowned in white satin, with a completely pearl-beaded bodice, and Peter Pan neckline, with wrist-length sleeves; a very full skirt, and a very long train of white satin. Her all-over pearl-beaded crown was arranged with a fingertip-length veil, and she carried a mother-of-pearl bible, with two white orchids and a mauve orchid, and streamers of lily-of-the-valley. Miss Elaine Welikovich, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. She wore a net gown in off-blue shade, fashioned with a strapless neckline, with a covering portrait collar, and a floor-length skirt; also a skull-cap, pointed at one side; and carried a bouquet of roses. Judith Schwartz, cousin of the groom, was flower girl, wearing a knee-length dress of aquamarine-blue, with a pink sash; and had a small coronet of pink carnations, and a nosegay. David Dunn was and was worn with a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Goldenberg, mother of the bride-elect, wore a navy-blue crepe dress, trimmed with taffeta, and fashioned with a lapelled collar, and slim skirt; with a red straw hat; rhinestone accessories; and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. A. Cohen, Waverley Street, grandmother of the groom-elect, wore a navy-blue crepe dress, designed with long sleeves, and a straight skirt; with a lace Peter Pan collar, and lace cuffs; and she had a corsage of red roses. Miss Goldenberg, the honoree, wore a velvet suit-dress, with a pink and gold metallic jacket, fashioned with a lapelled collar, trimmed with velvet; and three-quarter-length sleeves; with a slim skirt, and she had a pink straw hat, trimmed with flowers; and a mauve orchid corsage. Roses and gladioli centred the tea-table.

best man; and the ushers were: Irving Wiseberg, cousin of the bride; Max Schwartz, uncle of the groom; and Jack Gottlieb, Ben. Kirach, Arnold Kanefsky, Saul Ettinger, Sam. Greenberg, and Nat. Cohen. Jerry Wiseberg, brother of the bride, walked down the aisle with Miss Ann Robinson, his cousin, who wore a pale blue strapless taffeta gown, with a stole. Leonard Welikovich, the page boy, in full dress, carried the ring on a white satin cushion. The aisle was marked by white pillars of variegated flowers, with white candles, tied with white satin ribbon, and at the centre of the bride, there was a heart-shaped arch of variegated flowers, where the bride and groom met for the ceremony. For the reception, an orchestra played; each table had a bouquet of flowers, with candles; and there were bouquets of flowers along the walls. Receiving, Mrs. Wiseberg, mother of the bride, wore a mauve Chantilly lace gown, with a strapless neckline, and matching stole; also a matching feathered hat; and a corsage of mauve orchids. Mrs. Welikovich, mother of the groom, was in royal-blue Chantilly lace, fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline, worn with a matching feathered hat, and a corsage of red roses. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in New York, the former travelling in a grey heavy-worsted suit, designed with a tailored jacket and slim skirt; also a white nylon blouse, a grey hat, and white shoes; and a Russian squirrel cape. They are residing at 3325 Van Horne Avenue. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. N. Kaye Stewart, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Steinberg, of New York; and Mrs. B. Somer, of Hartford, Conn.

Smallpox, cholera, plague, and typhus are still epidemic in some countries where intensive campaigns have not been waged to wipe them out. In Canada, over a long period of years, there have been very few cases of any of these diseases because vaccination or other forms of immunization, and attention to sanitation, have been used to combat them. Tuberculosis can be similarly conquered if all cases are discovered early by means of chest x-rays and are given treatment before they become serious.

Metropolitan Life New High Record

Ottawa, March 12 — "New high records were made in 1951 when the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company paid over $47,000,000 in benefits to policyholders and beneficiaries in Canada," said Mr. Glen J. Spahn, Second Vice President in charge of the company's Canadian operations.

These benefit payments, made under individual and group life insurance and accident and health insurance contracts, include death claim payments, matured policies, accident and health and disability benefits, annuity payments, surrender values and dividends.

Other high lights of Canadian business as revealed by the annual report to policyholders published today, include an increase in total life insurance in force, an increase in new business issued during 1951, and an increase in the company's investments in Canada.

GLEN J. SPAHN

The increases in the purchase of personal life insurance are seen by Mr. Spahn as showing a widespread desire to make provision for the future of the family through life insurance designed to fit individual needs.

It was pointed out that Canadian investments now amounting to more than $622,000,000 are playing an important part in the economy of the country with substantial totals in Federal, Provincial and Municipal Bonds, and with sizeable totals in the obligations of steel and paper companies, the oil industry, railroads, electric light and power companies.

Mr. Spahn called attention to the fact that the total amount that the Metropolitan has paid to Canadians since it entered the country in 1872, plus the amount now invested in Canada, exceeded the premiums received from Canadians by more than $424,000,000. "This gives some idea of the significant contribution that the company has made to Canada in its 79 years of operation here," he commented.

For the entire company it was reported that payments to policyholders or beneficiaries amounted to $924 millions, an increase of $69 millions over 1950, and the largest total for any year in the company's 84-year history. In the last 10 years the company has paid over six and a half billions in benefits—substantially more than its assets at the start of the 10-year period.

The 1951 payments included $312,000,000 in death claim payments, $147,000,000 in matured endowments, $141,000,000 in accident and health and disability benefits, and $34,000,000 in annuity payments.

More than $5,500,000 of the death claims were under policies which had been purchased less than a year before. Up to the end of 1951, beneficiaries of 2,372 service men who died in Korea received $2,288,000.

Special attention was directed to the total of $141,000,000 paid in accident and health and disability benefits, which include hospital, surgical, or medical expense benefits and which is five times as large as ten years ago.

The company was serving 33,373,000 life insurance policyholders in Canada and the United States at the end of the year. The life insurance in force was $48,512,000,000—an increase of $3,087,000,000 during the year—and it was made up of $23,188,000,000 of ordinary insurance, $10,694,000,000 of industrial, and $14,680,000,000 of group.

The issue of ordinary insurance by the company was 11 percent higher and that of industrial insurance more than 4 percent higher in 1951 than in 1950. The ordinary issue was $1,996,000,000, as compared with $1,798,000,000 in 1950; and the industrial issue $751,000,000, compared with the previous year's $719,000,000. All life insurance issued by the company in 1951 totalled $3,500,000,000.

There were outstanding, in addition to life insurance, 3,270,000 individual policies or group certificates providing weekly indemnity and principal sum accident and health benefits. Hospital, surgical, or medical expense benefits were provided by 2,744,000 policies or certificates.

There also were 502,000 individual annuity contracts or group certificates in force for a total annual income of $184 millions, including $34 millions of annuity income now payable.

The termination rate continued at a low level, and the mortality experience continued to be very favourable.

Amounts reserved for dividend payments to policyholders during 1952 total $170,405,000. Of this, $81,120,000 is for ordinary policyholders, $80,166,000 for industrial policyholders, $30,400,000 for group policyholders (excluding accident and health) and $8,719,000 for accident and health policyholders.

At the year's end, 48 percent of the assets were in the securities of commerce and industry, 23 percent in Canadian and United States government obligations, 18 percent in city and farm mortgages and real estate and the balance in housing, policy loans, etc.

At the close of 1951 the company's assets stood at $10,901,000,000. The statutory reserve—determined according to legal requirements—for future payments to policyholders was $2,285,000,000, and other obligations amounted to $983 millions. A surplus of $633 millions—6.2 percent of the total liabilities—was held for contingencies.

More Protection for More People

Report to Metropolitan Policyholders for 1951

THE importance of Life insurance and its relationship to the lives of the people of the United States and Canada cannot effectively be portrayed by figures in a balance sheet. Cold figures can never adequately show human needs and their fulfillment. It is important, therefore, to try to interpret these figures in terms of the millions of people they represent and the millions who benefit by the use of the services rendered by the Company and its Agents. The Metropolitan was serving 33,373,000 Life insurance policyholders at the close of the year.

The personal phases of Life insurance — for it is a highly personal business — are highlighted daily by dramatic instances. Sometimes they are so unusual as to give special emphasis to the part our business plays in the life of the United States and Canada. The following quotation from a letter from the son of a deceased policyholder, requesting the return of a policy on which claim had been paid, tells with simple sincerity a moving story of a Life insurance policy, of the son's relationship with his father, and of a sound process of economic and social education:

"This policy . . . has for me possibly a greater sentimental value than it would have cash value . . . For you to understand this, you would have to know the years of close relationship and confidence that existed between my father and me. When I was a small boy, he would take me with him to his safety deposit vault . . . Always he stressed to me the importance of his insurance policy, how this piece of paper would some day have a cash value that might tide the family over in an emergency . . . Time has passed . . . but the sentimental worth of this piece of paper is constant in my thinking . . . I have always been told that business, especially Big Business, is hard and cold and rigid, but I know that this is not so, because business is made up of people. People with hearts and souls and loved ones, and people who have lost loved ones, and some who possibly think and feel the same way that I do."

We were, of course, pleased to grant this unusual request.

The record sum of $924,000,000 was paid in benefits to policyholders and beneficiaries during 1951. This included payments of $141,000,000 on more than 1,250,000 claims (five times ten years ago) for Accident and Health and Disability benefits. A new high was also reached in Life insurance in force — $48,512,000,000, a gain of more than $3,000,000,000 over 1950.

More people than ever were protected last year by Metropolitan Accident and Health insurance. As the year closed, the Company had in force 3,270,000 policies or certificates providing weekly indemnity for disability of $86,000,000 per week. Hospital, Surgical or Medical Expense benefits were provided by 2,744,000 policies or certificates.

Another significant development during the year was the introduction of Extended Medical Coverage through Group insurance to protect people against abnormal hospital, surgical, and medical expense that might exhaust a family's entire savings.

METROPOLITAN OPERATIONS IN CANADA

These high lights of the Company's business in Canada during 1951, our 78th year in this country, will be of particular interest to Metropolitan's Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries.

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries

Metropolitan paid in 1951 to its Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries $47,042,393 in death claims — matured policies — accident and health and disability benefits — dividends and other payments. Of this amount, 70% was paid to living policyholders.

The total amount the Metropolitan has paid to Canadians since it entered Canada in 1872, plus the amount now invested in Canada, exceeds the total premiums received from Canadians by more than $424,000,000.

Life Insurance in Force

In 1951, Canadians bought $233,659,426 of new Life insurance protection in the Metropolitan, and at the year's end the Company was serving 2,500,000 Life insurance policyholders in Canada insured for $2,658,301,557. Of this amount, 56% was Ordinary business, 28% was Industrial and 16% was Group.

Total Investments in Canada

Metropolitan investments in Canada amounted to $632,999,420 at the end of 1951. These investments are playing an important part in the economy of Canada with substantial totals of Federal, Provincial, and Municipal bonds and with sizeable totals in the obligations of steel and paper companies, the oil industry, railroads, electric light and power companies, and others.

Health and Welfare Work

Since 1909 Metropolitan has conducted a continuous health education campaign in Canada and during 1951 participated in numerous activities. More than 2,100,000 pamphlets on a variety of health and safety topics were distributed — monthly health advertisements appeared in national publications — "Good Hints for Good Health" was a daily feature on many radio stations.

The honoree, Miss Sabie, wore an iridescent striped taffeta cocktail dress, in tones of bronze-color; made with a strapless bodice, a tulle overskirt, and tulle stole; and had a corsage of mauve orchids. Roses, carnations, snapdragons, and gladioli were combined for the table centrepiece.

Brandeis U. To Build Gift Amphitheater

Brandeis University announced that work will begin immediately on the construction of the Adolph Ullman Amphitheater on the university campus. It will contain full facilities for spring and summer musical, dramatic and other cultural activities, and will be the first unit in the projected Creative Arts Center of the University. It will be used this June for a three-day Festival of the Creative Arts, preceding the University's first commencement exercises, and directed by composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, director of the School of the Creative Arts.

To be constructed of wood and concrete, the amphitheater will occupy three acres of land and will be situated on a natural slope facing the grape arbor on the University's 187-acre campus. Seating facilities will be available in this first year for 2,000 spectators and there is the potential for future expansion. The entire cost of the construction of this facility has been underwritten by Adolph Ullman, Boston businessman, who serves as chairman of the Creative Arts Center Committee at Brandeis and as honorary chair-

Film Writer Was One Of Noted Twin Team

Philip G. Epstein, who with his twin brother, Julius, formed Hollywood's best known screen writing team, died at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital after a brief illness at the age of 42. His death resulted from complications that developed during treatment for a severe attack of poison oak, which he contracted on a recent trip to New York.

Mr. Epstein collaborated with his brother on many films during the last fifteen years, among them "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "The Male Animal" and "My Foolish Heart." The writers won the 1943 "Oscar" of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for their screen play of "Casablanca." Under contract at Paramount Studios since last year, they had recently completed a screen version of Sir James M. Barrie's "Roseland" and were working on a scenario of F. Scott Fitzgerald's "Babylon Revisited."

Born in New York, Mr. Epstein was a son of Henry Epstein, proprietor of a well-known old-time Cherry Street livery stable. He attended public schools there and Pennsylvania State College. He and his brother worked in the Cherry Lane Theatre in Greenwich Village, and wrote a play produced by the Theatre Guild, "And Stars Remain," before coming to Hol-

HONEY-BUN RING

Scald $\frac{1}{4}$ c. milk, $\frac{1}{2}$ c. granulated sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt and $\frac{1}{4}$ c. shortening; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl $\frac{1}{2}$ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 min. THEN stir well.

Add cooled milk mixture and stir in 1 well-beaten egg and 1 tsp. grated lemon rind. Stir in 2 c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 2 c. (about) once-sifted bread flour. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl and grease top of dough. Cover and set in warm place, free from draft. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough and roll out into an oblong about 9" wide and 24" long; loosen dough. Combine $\frac{1}{2}$ c. lightly-packed brown sugar and $\frac{1}{4}$ c. liquid honey; spread over dough and sprinkle with $\frac{1}{4}$ c. broken walnuts. Beginning at a long side, loosely roll up like a jelly roll. Lift carefully into a greased 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ " tube pan and join ends of dough to form a ring. Brush top with melted butter. Higher Earnings For Montreal Life

The Montreal Life Insurance Company's annual report for 1951 shows greatly increased assets, a higher average gross rate of interest earned on investments, and the largest underwriting profit in the history of the company.

New loans secured by first mortgages on residential and business property amounted to $2,478,523 increasing the company's holdings of this type of investment to $10,336,612. As of December 31, 1951, interest was due and unpaid on only eight mortgage loans for a total amount of $1,342.

Assets increased by $1,682,211 during the year.

INTEREST RATES HIGHER

The average gross rate of interest earned on invested assets during the period was 4.20 percent, up from 4.78 percent earned a year ago. This is the fourth consecutive year of increase in interest earnings, and it is anticipated that earnings may exceed five percent in 1952.

The report continues with a review of the company's mortality experience in the last three years: 23.88 percent of the expected or tabulated mortality in 1951, 32.32 percent in 1950 and 35.80 percent in 1949. It states that this favourable mortality experience during the past few years is, in part, the fruit of sound underwriting practices involving careful selection of risks.

An underwriting profit of $367,716, the largest in the history of the company, is reported for the year. In addition there was a net profit on sale or maturity of ledger assets amounting to $123,223, making a total company profit of $490,939. Of this the directors employed $34,487 to write down ledger assets, $91,974 to strengthen actuarial reserves and $175,000 to enlarge the company's investment and contingency reserve.

The Directors authorized the same scale of dividend to holders of participating policies as maintained in the past year.

Idol Worship In Our Day

The old form of idolatry has no doubt long disappeared from our world, along with other ancient abominations such as infanticide, human sacrifice, and slavery. But these evils are found in our world today in new forms. Unwelcome children are no longer exposed on mountains to be devoured by wild beasts, but what about child labour still existing where children are forced into factories and mines, and denied the romance of childhood? What about the slavery that has to do with a pitiful wage which denies a man a decent livelihood? The institution of slavery, bloody in all its forms, still prevails when men by the millions are slaughtered in wars. Some day, mankind will be spiritually mature enough to realize the stupidity of it all.

What is idol worship? It has to do with the substitution of a material object and the worship of that material object for a spiritual entity, known as God. Idol worship came into religion because the language of religion is difficult to follow and because religion deals with ideas. The child, before it learns to read, and before it learns ideas, must look to pictures for the translation of thought, and so it has been with human kind.

Even in our mature years, we depend on pictures as well as words for the interpretation of thought. Hence, the import of picture magazines and the development of art itself. One of the psychological factors which attracts multitudes to movie houses, is the fact that masses of people find thinking painful and are still possessed of that child attitude which finds pictures most attractive.

Masses of people are willing to line up in front of movie houses, and, if need be, to freeze, awaiting their turn to enter a theatre, so that they can be entertained by looking at pictures, and thus escape the effort which is associated with good reading and attendance at worship in the House of God, where their conscience may be awakened by the preaching of morals and their intellect aroused by thinking which can come through listening to a stirring sermon.

Thrilling, for example, as is John Stuart Mills' essay on Liberty, more thrilling and more convincing is the Statue of Liberty, with its blazing torch which one beholds when sailing into New York City harbour. There is no doubt that symbolism is of great and vital importance in religion. Every symbol telescopes an idea or ideal. Who is not moved by the symbolism of the Torah? Judaism, is rich with symbolism, but it has ever warned against the making of the symbol a thing to be worshipped in itself. Alas, there are multitudes in our midst, who, indeed, become idol worshippers when they make gods out of ceremonies and ceremonialism.

Was it not Matthew Arnold, who spoke of the idolatry known as "Bibliolatry?" When the bible, the Holy Book itself, is made an idol and all it contains, even its human elements. Of course, the bible is a Holy Book and has been made possible through divine inspiration, but the form in which great truths are expressed in the holy book is but human, and we must be able to understand that the bible is the Holy Book, as long as men and women study it and derive from it guidance by which to lead holy lives. Idolatry means narrowness, fixity of thought, it means the degradation of man, the child of God.

Alas, we Jews have too often made a fetish of our labels of Judaism and our particular parties within Judaism and thus have forgotten Judaism itself. So many among us indulge in emphasizing the labels of Orthodoxy, Reform, and Conservative, and forget that the important thing is Judaism and the leading of a goodly life as taught by Judaism. Judaism has always had its parties. The parties within Judaism constitute but the colors of the rainbow. There has never been one kind of Judaism, and it is high time that we stop emphasizing the labels and party distinctions and give emphasis to the great religious heritage of our fathers.

Of course, what Moses feared when he beheld the golden calf, was just this, that the Jews of ancient days might look upon the golden calf as a permanent shrine and the onward march of the Jewish people to the promised land would not take place.

Well would it be for modern Jews to guard against the idolatry of ignorance which seems to be made into a cult. Behold, to what low levels so many Jewish organizations have descended in the programmes which they present! Can Jewish organizations no longer digest something of the cultural and the spiritual, or must they resort to the worship of cheap humour and constant fashion shows in order to attract multitudes to their meetings? Alas, alas, we dance madly around golden calves today, and we are not even conscious of what a sinful and mediocre people we are surely becoming. The pity of it all is that we do not study the Torah which constitutes a tree of life to those who behold it!

The President has refused to make new nominations and the two remaining vacancies have not yet been filled, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Judge Epstein spent most of his adult life in public service. Born in Chicago, he was a graduate of the Northwestern University School of Law and was admitted to the bar in 1909. In 1914 he was appointed an Assistant United States Attorney at Chicago. He held this post through 1920, in which year he was the special counsel for the government in the prosecution of the Consumers Packing Co. mail fraud case.

For three years, between 1930 and 1933, he served as Master in Chancery in the United States District Court, one of the important matters handled by him being the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Railroad receiverships and reorganizations.

In 1933 he became a judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County, which post he held at the time of his death. He temporarily held the post of chief justice of this court in 1937-38.

ISRAEL PLANS

brary, Miss Anna Davis, who completed her tour of duty in Israel, made the library the focal point for students and other young persons with 8,000 registered readers and an average of 800 visitors a day. The biggest demand among visitors is for "how to do it" books — everything from how to shoe horses to how to rehabilitate invalids. Almost daily, teachers, doctors and university professors go to the library in search of scientific and scholarly books.

Under a "presentation" program, the library has given away 10,000 books, including army education manuals, during the past year. However, this does not begin to satisfy the demand, which could be met only through commercial channels. Some schools borrowed books and had them mimeographed for the use of students during this school year, according to the New York Times.

The Soviet Union does not run its own bookstores, as in some other countries, but supplies its wares liberally. A new store opened several months ago a block from the heart of Jerusalem.

A survey of a dozen bookstores in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem in the last few weeks, showed that the few books remaining in the English language were unobtainable and that no new ones were received or expected. On the other hand, Russian books were plentiful and cheap. One of the country's leading scientists said that some of his colleagues who had almost forgotten Russian were relearning it to read Soviet scientific publications since others were unavailable.

A course on Israel life and culture has been opened at Morgan State College, in Baltimore, in cooperation with the Embassy of Israel, the Israel Office of Information and the Baltimore College. Dr. Irene Diggs, professor of sociology, who visited Israel last summer, will be the instructor in the course and she will be assisted by lecturers from the above. The first outside lecture will be delivered by Abraham Harman, Director of the Israel Office of Information, in New York. Among the subjects to be covered are the history of the Jews in Palestine, the general political and historical background of the State of Israel, Israel's constitution and system of government, and Israel's economic situation. Other subjects will cover the cultural fields and the position of women in the economy and social life of Israel.
